Swan's Point for Sale.
BEING desirous of changing my business, the ensuing fall, I will sell my plantation on Swan's Point, containing

ONE THOUSAND ACRES OF LAND.
Three or four hundred of which, are enclosed and cleared, the balance well timbered. The plantation is situated, and lies immediately in front of New River bar, commanding a fine view of the Ocean.
The soil is alluvial, the situation pleasant and healthy, as any in the low country. To persons wishing a trading station, it offers inducements rarely to be found in this or any other part of the State. Being equidistant from the towns of Wilmington and Newbern, and from which places, small schooners, of some thirty or forty tons burthen, ply daily; by which, goods may be delivered at the warehouse door, if necessary, and the produce of the country shipped immediately to any of our Northern or Southern markets. There are several fine sites for erecting Steam Mills, and one for Salt works—the surrounding country abounds with pine of the best quality for the lumber trade, and the quantity inexhaustible.
If desirable, I will sell with the place the growing crop, and hire out a number of negroes until the first of January next.
Persons wishing to purchase, are invited to call and view the premises, on or before the 20th of next month, July.

To Travellers.
Comparison of Expense
TO TRAVELLERS GOING NORTH,
BY THE GREAT HAY ROUTE
AND
THE RIVER AND BAY LINE.
By the Bay Line.
From Weldon to Baltimore, $9 00
Breakfast in Baltimore, 50
Fare by the Morning Line to Philadelphia, 3 00
Dinner on the Road, 50
Whole expense, $13 00
By the great Mail Route.
From Weldon to Baltimore by the Rail Road and Steamboat to Washington, and thence by the Stage Line to Baltimore, eight dollars and fifty cents—or by the Rail Road Line throughout, two dollars and fifty cents more, making $11 00
From Baltimore to Philadelphia, by the Evening Line, 2 00
Two Meals between Petersburg and Philadelphia, 1 00
Whole expense, $14 00
It will thus appear, that the whole expense between Weldon and Philadelphia, by the Great Mail Route, even if the Traveller takes the Washington and Baltimore Rail Road, is

BUT ONE DOLLAR MORE
To Philadelphia; and the Traveller reaches Philadelphia by this Route, a business day earlier than by the River and Bay Route, resting on the way, and avoiding not only the uncertainties and risk of greater delay by the Bay Line, but its liability to accidents, storms, sea sickness and other discomforts.

TAKE NOTICE.
ALL persons indebted to me, in any shape whatever, are urgently requested to come forward and settle without further notice. I am compelled to call in all my dues immediately, as I am unmercifully pushed by all of my creditors—sued and perplexed. All who fail to settle by the first day of June, will find their notes and accounts in the hands of an officer for collection, it being out of my power to give further indulgence. With feelings of regret, I am forced to make this bold and urgent demand, purely out of necessity.
V. R. PEIRSON.

SELLING OFF AT COST.
I will sell the balance of my stock of GOODS, which is a full and complete assortment in my line, comprising in part a full stock of Summer Goods, suitable for summer wear; Drap d'Ete; Bombazines; Gambroons; Linen Drills; Vest; of every variety, style and pattern; with a full assortment of Fancy articles! A large lot of READY-MADE CLOTHING, of every variety and quality.
I flatter myself that my stock was laid in as low, or lower, than any other in my line of business. My stock has always been the largest, and now comprises the greatest variety of any in the town of Wilmington, and I now hold out inducements to all who may want any thing in my line, at cost for cash, or a short credit to those that have been in the habit of paying their bills when called upon. It will be out of my power to credit any more to long-winded customers.
The Store I now occupy will be to rent. Possession given the first of October.

Lands for Sale.

THE subscriber being desirous of removing to the south-west, offers for sale all his Lands lying in the county of Duplin, N. C.
One tract containing six hundred and twenty-one acres, adjoining the village of Kenansville; three hundred of which, is cleared, and under good fence, the balance well timbered. On the premises, is a good two story framed dwelling, containing seven rooms, with kitchen, smoke-house, barn, and all other out-houses, in first rate repair. Within one hundred yards of the dwelling, there is a never failing spring of water, as good as can be found in the lower part of the State; and there in three quarters of a mile of the village, there is an Academy, where students can always prepare for College. The land is well adapted to the cultivation of Cotton, Peas, Corn, &c.
Another tract of two thousand six hundred and fifty acres, lying on both sides of the Wilmington and Raleigh Railroad, about 45 miles from Wilmington. There is about five hundred acres of this tract cleared, and under good fence, with all necessary buildings. There is EIGHTY THOUSAND Turpentine boxes cut on the land, and trees enough to cut at least twenty thousand more. There is also a first rate mill seat on the premises, within one hundred yards of the Railroad, with a frame on the spot ready to raise: the timber has been got within the last six months. A Mill here, could be made valuable, as ready sale could always be had for all the Railroad rafting she could saw. This land also produces good crops of Corn, Cotton, Peas, &c.
Another tract of four hundred acres of first rate land, two hundred of which is under cultivation, lying six miles from Kenansville, and four miles from Warsaw. There is a task of Turpentine boxes on the land, and the balance well timbered.
As the subscriber wishes to remove, more for the benefit of his health than any thing else, he will sell the above lands at a great bargain, either separately or all together, on very accommodating terms. Persons wishing to view the lands, will please call on him at Kenansville.

A CAUTION.
A MAN named GEORGE WEED, a Machinist by trade, who had been working at the Rail Road Depot, in this place, for three or four months, left here on the 26th June last, on the Rail Road for the North, indebted to the subscriber for BOARD to the amount of upwards of fifty dollars. He had on when he left, a glazed cap, striped coat and pants, (summer wear)—he carried no baggage. He is between 30 and 35 years of age, about 6 feet high, has round shoulders, dark hair, blue eyes, and pretty large feet.
A liberal reward will be paid for his delivery to the subscriber in this place; and as it is understood that he left Savannah, Ga., and Charleston, S. C., in the same manner, no doubt a liberal reward would be paid at either of these places for his delivery to the subscribers.
The foregoing is to caution all persons against trusting the scoundrel, as those who do so may expect to be cheated.

Blank for sale at this office.

On the death of Gen'l Andrew Jackson.

Amid a field of glory stood
A goodly stalk unscarred and green;
Tempest and battle, fire and flood,
Had pass'd it as a thing unseen;
And still o'er every shattered form
It waved its head and mocked the storm.
The Reaper sought that harvest field,
The grain was in its yellow leaf,
He took the choicest of its yield
And bound it in a deathless sheaf;
Then soaring to the Garner's dome,
The spirit sang the "Harvest Home."
When not a breath swept over the lea,
To make the trembling bull-rush nod
Oh! 'twas a glorious sight to see
That tall ear bending to its God.
And when the Reaper marked it well,
How in its pride it gently fell.

A nation mourns her lowly son,
And hush! in tears his lowly grave;
Her man is heard in every gun,
Her sigh in every banner's wave!
From deep to deep her sorrow spreads
While hoary mountains veil their heads.

The Reaper Death, with noiseless tread,
Has borne her fondest hope away,
Though blooming garlands bound his head
That withering time could ne'er decay;
Yet while she weeps, she joys to feel,
That on him God hath set his seal.

Ye who would rule the people, go!
And learn a lesson from the dead,
Think how he met his country's foe
In halls of peace, on fields of red.
Defend your soil though tyrants draw,
And make his dying words your law.

Oh! he would never falsely clasp
The hand that dealt the traitor's blow;
Nor would he hug the poisonous cup
That sought to sting him in his woe.
He loved the faithful and the brave;
He scorned the coward and the knave.

Deep in our hearts his fame shall keep
Her altar and her quenchless fire,
And there shall the proud spirit weep
When patriot arms grow weak and tire;
And from his memory hope shall bring
The roses of the Spirit's Spring.

ANNEXATION IN VIRGINIA.
A REAL TRANSACTION.

A few days since, a young gentleman and lady of Madison, Va., concluded negotiations, which had been going on some time previous, on the subject of annexation, and the articles of union were duly signed and sealed by the parties, and submitted to the mother, a very respectable widow lady, for ratification, peremptorily refused her consent, and declared that the annexation should, under no contingency, take place.

The parties got together afterwards, and after deliberating maturely on the subject, concluded that, as the mother would not acknowledge the independence of the young lady, and that as she was neither de jure nor de facto sovereign and independent, the only way to accomplish their object and consummate their wishes, was to revolutionize, and if possible, accomplish their wishes in that way.

Accordingly they procured a suitable conveyance, and set off with all speed to the city of Washington. Arriving at the village of Centerville, accompanied by a female friend, they stopped at an inn to refresh themselves, where they were overtaken by a brother of the young lady and a friend, who, after securing his sister in a room, commenced a furious attack on her lover, which soon put the whole village in an uproar, and brought many of the citizens to the scene of action. The brother was furious, and the lover was alarmed. The brother endeavored to intimidate the sister, but she resolutely declared for annexation, and that nothing but death should sever the bonds of union which had been agreed upon between her and her lover. The brother, still more and more exasperated, repeated a threat to kill the lover, which more and more alarmed him; and he was almost on the point of relinquishing his prize, and trusting to further negotiation to bring about the ultimatum of all his hopes and wishes—annexation. His whole soul had been upon it. They had, as they thought, succeeded in achieving their independence, and to be thus frustrated, was too bad. "What shall I do?" thought the lover, "if I give her up, I am undone and miserable forever; and if he kills me, why then, she will be undone and broken-hearted forever—what shall I do? what can I do? Here are two to one against me. You surely won't kill me," said he to the brother. "I love your sister, and she loves me—you surely won't kill me, and render her miserable for life!" "I swear I will," replied the incorrigible brother; and the young man turned pale as death, as despair sat upon his countenance.

Just at this moment a spectator, who had witnessed the greater part of the scene, took the young man aside, and told him that he would set every thing right in a twinkling, if he would follow his advice. "My dear sir, I know that you are my friend from the frankness in which you address me—tell me how to act, and I will obey you; and if I succeed, you will make me your devoted friend forever." "Very well, now mark me. He threatened to kill you—I heard him make the threat—all you have to do is to apply for a warrant, and bind him over to keep the peace. He being a stranger in this peaceful little village of Centerville, nobody will go his bail; and the consequences will be, he must go to jail, and then what will hinder you from securing your prize and proceeding to Washington, where you can be annexed. We are all for annexation here, and when both parties are willing, I don't see what right Great Britain, Mexico, or anybody else has to interfere." Hope, joy and gratitude, all rose in the young man's bosom, and off he sped to the magistrate, who, upon the testimony of his friend, issued the warrant, which being placed in the hands of the town constable, the first thing the brother knew he was in limbo. Whilst the trial was going on, the friend, who had left word with the magistrate not to commit the brother, but to keep him waiting some time for the accused to appear, had the conveyance ready, and the rebellious subjects were again on their way to the city; and as it was not more than twenty-five or thirty miles, and he was in favor of the measure, he concluded to come along with them, bringing also another young friend, who volunteered his services on the occasion.

The brother, after having been detained a considerable length of time by the magistrate, and no prosecutor appearing, was of course set at liberty. On his return to the inn, and inquiring for the rebels, he was informed that they had been gone more than an hour, but which course no person knew. Filled with rage, and overwhelmed with vexation, he gave up the pursuit.

The rebel party struck up a lively pace, and arrived in the city on Saturday evening, and stopped, of course, at the Virginia House on C. street. The lover and one of his Centerville friends went immediately to the Clerk's office and procured a license, whilst the other went in search of a parson. Just as every thing was ready, and the sexton had announced that the parson was waiting at the church to perform his duty, up drives another brother, who had taken the route by Richmond, in pursuit of the rebel fugitives, and inquired if this was the Virginia House! The Centerville friend who judged from his hurried manner and of speech, that he was of the anti-annexation party, promptly answered in the negative, and pointed him to the Exchange as the Virginia House. The brother in great haste, drove up to the Exchange, and finding he had been deceived, came back, and demanded of the landlord, if there was not a runaway couple in the House. "Not now," says the landlord, "they have just left through the back door, and I will venture any sum they are gone to the Church." They went in a devil of a hurry. "What Church?" what Church?" exclaimed the brother. "Why to the Baptist in E. street, I suppose, for it was the sexton of that Church I saw here a while ago." Away went the brother to the Church, but when he got there the door was fast. The young lady had told the sexton to lock the door as they went. The brother leaped over the railing, but unfortunately got into the wrong yard. Meanwhile the parson in a sweet mellow tone, had gone through the ceremony—annexation had been consummated—Hymen approved and ratified the articles of union, and ordered his clerk to record it in the book of fate, and the parties left with smiling faces, & hearts throbbing with the liveliest emotions, and returned to the Virginia House. Just as the parties turned the corner, the brother found his way out of the yard, and came into the Church much excited. "Has there been a couple just married here?" he inquired. "There has," answered the young parson. "By whom," he again demanded. "By me," calmly replied the parson. "Then sir, I will hold you responsible." "I am responsible, for what I do," replied the parson very kindly, "to much higher power, and for the legal authority, I have that in my pocket in the shape of a license, and what God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

The brother at once saw that he was at the end of his row, and after saying he had travelled two hundred miles in twenty-four hours, forty of which had been on horseback, and was only five minutes too late, he believed he would go back home. On enquiring of the gentleman from Centerville, I was informed that the ladies in that part of the Old Dominion are all for annexation—to a man.
AN EVE WITNESS.

A MYSTERIOUS MAN.
There was a man up before Recorder Genois a few days since, who calls himself Relambert St. Amand, and whose movements are more mysterious than those of the famous "man in the white hat." Of this truth our readers will be convinced, when they are informed of some of his movements—we say some, because by no means intend to give a narrative of the whole of his peregrinations, even within the periods we refer to.

To begin. Some eight years ago a stranger in Paris was, as he thought, having in a most secret manner, a number of plates engraved, with a view of counterfeiting the notes of the Union Bank of Louisiana. The vigilant Parisian police became apprised of his operations, and informed the American Consul of the facts. His schemes, for that time at least, were frustrated, and to save himself from arrest, he fled to London. There—it was in the year 1838—he resumed his preparatory efforts to increase the circulating medium. He was arrested, tried, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the Giltspur street prison. From prison, he wrote to the Mayor of this city, telling him he had startling developments to make, touching a secret association or company in our midst, engaged in a system of extensive forgery and counterfeiting. No attention was paid to his letter, and he served out his time. He was next heard of in Philadelphia, and then again in Port-au-Prince, Hayti; from which place he wrote to the Mayor of this city, Mr. Montague, giving his name as Edouard Relambert, and stating that he was most rascally treated by the black republicans of that island; that they had thrown him into prison, taken from him $15,000 in cash, and $10,000 in goods, and otherwise maltreated him. He called for the interposition of our authorities, as he claimed to be an American citizen, and a resident of the parish of St. John the Baptist, in this State. Before the Mayor had well time to test the truth of his representations, lo! he is in New Orleans, under the name of Relambert St. Amand. He introduces himself to the Governor, pays his devoirs to the Mayor, publishes a card in the Bee, soliciting from the members of the medical profession, to which respectable fraternity he claims to belong, pecuniary aid, and is finally arrested by the First Municipality police, as a "dangerous and suspicious character."

It is a pity, is it not, that Capt. Elliott, in his recent diplomatic expeditions and negotiations, had not had the services of so very enterprising a gentleman, and such an adept in guile as Mons. Relambert St. Amand, or Edouard Relambert? But perhaps he is, after all, "the man in the white hat." He sports a white castor, and a shocking bad one, that's a fact.—N. O. Picayune.

Peto, how does your father hamper his sheep, to prevent their jumping over the fence? "Oh, that's easy enough; he just cuts a hole through one hind leg, and sticks the other one through it, and then puts one of the fore legs through that for a pin."
